ABOARD ADM. MCCAIN'S FLAGSHIP OFF JAPAN, July 26—Fighter planes from British aircraft carriers operating from this world's largest task force broke up a Japanese torpedo plane attack yesterday in the first instance of a direct enemy raid against the third fleet since it opened its attack July 10.

By United Press
Japan's shattered coastal cities braced themselves today amid smoke and sweat waiting for another Allied fleet strike, still stunned after a 48-hour aerial bombbardment that wrecked at least 104 Japanese ships and virtually finished the Imperial navy as a fighting force.

American Army planes took up where the Navy left off with a medium force of 75 to 100 B-29's from the Marianas roaring over the Tokyo area before midnight last night to unload hundreds of tons of fire and demolition bombs on three big oil plants in the city's suburbs.

In their 12th major strike against Japan's home oil resources, the superforts hit the Mitsubishi, Hayama, and Asahi refineries at Kawasaki.

The Japanese radio claimed today that the Kawasaki raid caused American casualties when a war prisoners' camp was bombed.

The broadcast stated briefly,
"some casualties were caused among war prisoners, who were mostly Americans."

Surprise Landing Reported
Japanese radio reports also declared that Allied units were fighting bitterly along the shoreline of "Puket Island" after a surprise landing which put the Allies back on the Malay peninsula for the first time since Singapore's fall.

Domel news agency said that some 500 Allied troops landed on the island, off the west coast of the Malay peninsula and just below the narrow Kra isthmus, at LONDON, July 26—This is how prominent British political leaders fared in today's election count:

Conservative cabinet ministers
M. H. MacMillan, secretary of state for air, and Sir Walter Womunseated by Laborite candidates.

Both had been elected by substantial majorities in the last general election in 1935.

Laborite A. V. Alexander, former first lord of the admiralty in the coalition cabinet, was re-elected, along with Laborite Arthur

EUROPEAN COAL FAMINE TAKES NEW IMPORTANCE

LONDON, July 26—The coal famine in Europe is so serious that it has supplanted food as the most immediate problem confronting the Allies, an American official told the United Press today.

The fuel shortage has a high priority on the agenda of the Big Three at Potsdam, this official said.

Consumer countries normally import about 80,000,000 tons of coal per year, but it now appears doubtful whether the Allies can ship in 20,000,000 tons—or 50 percent of the minimum requirement.

Before the war Germany, Great Britain, and Poland supplied most of the required 80,000,000 tons with Germany furnishing over half. Britain produced 25 percent and Poland the remainder.

Now Germany is down to between five and 10 percent of normal, Britain's production has slumped badly, and Poland may be able to reach a 1,000,000 tons more.

TRUMAN VISITS YANKEE TROOPS DURING RECESS

President Says 'War Fought
So We Can Live, Think,
And Act As We Like'

EARLY REPORT EXPECTED

Chief Executive Pleased
With Progress On World Charter

FRANKFURT, July 26—President Truman told American troops here today that the war was fought
"so that we can live, think and act as we like."

Mr. Truman took the day off from the Big Three sessions at Potsdam to come to Gen. Dwight
D. Eisenhower's headquarters.

He spent most of his time with the GIs, reviewing the Third armored division and the 84th airborne infantry.

Climbing up on an artillery
mount, Truman talked to scores of troops, particularly those from Missouri and said: "I have never seen finer outfits or finer fighting men."

Speaking to the men of the 84th,
he said:

"It is a pleasure, indeed, to look at some good American soldiers.
My one regret in this last unpleasantness was that I was not allowed to wear a uniform although I tried hard enough."

"Now I seem to be responsible for all of you and I hope I can fulfill that responsibility. You have fought so that we can live, think and act as we like. I want to implement that in the footsteps of my great predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt. And when you come home I hope you find it as you like it and want it to be."

Mr. Truman is returning to Potsdam late today in time to resume big three discussions.

In view of the congressional recess before his return to the United States, Mr. Truman is planning to make the fullest possible report on the big three actions to the nation. He will make a radio broadcast shortly after his return.

Mr. Truman was understood to be extremely happy over the progress of the United Nations' char-

Points Reduced On Beef, Veal and Lamb For Ration Period Beginning Sunday

WASHINGTON, July 26—Reductions of one to two red points a pound for nearly all cuts of beef, lamb and veal were announced today by the Office of Price Administration for the ration period beginning Sunday.

The biggest cut will be on boneless beef rump roasts, which go down three points a pound, Hamburger, nearly all steaks, lamb loin and rib chops and veal leg and shoulder roasts were reduced two points for the August period.

The present point values of all cuts of pork, canned fish, fats and oil and dairy products will remain unchanged in August. Creamery butter continued at 16 points a pound.

Point values for many kosher beef, veal and lamb cuts also will be reduced from one to two points
a pound during the new rationing period.

"The department of agriculture reports some improvement in meat supplies for civilians, chiefly as the result of lower military purchases. This, along with better distribution, permitted OPA to make the reductions," Price Administrator Chester Bowles said. He estimated that the civilian meat supply would be 11 per cent greater in August than in July.

PETAIN DENIES DIEPPE LETTER

Jules Jeanneney Is First
Witness Of Day As Trial Resumes

PARIS, July 26—A denial by Marshal Henri Philippe Petain
that he sent a message congratulating Adolf Hitler on the repulse of the Dieppe commando raid in 1942 was read at his treason trial
today.

Petain's denial, made earlier
during his examination, was read by High Court Justice Pierre Mongibaux at the opening of the four-day trial.

The 89-year-old marshal said at his preliminary hearings that he never sent a telegram congratulating Hitler on the Allied defeat at Dieppe, and that to have done so would have been against the interests of France.

Petain's denial conflicted with a report read into the record yesterday that he did send such a message, and that he offered to send French troops to fight alongside the Germans. The dispatch of such a message was announced in Vichy at the time it purportedly was sent.

No Shortage Of Meat On Downs Farm

A Hampshire brood sow, owned by Dewey Downs, a member of the Pickaway county AAA committee, is apparently taking seriously the request of the government to produce more and more food.

Anyway, the pure-bred sow hit the jack-pot again, when she farrowed 16 pigs last Wednesday, thereby complying with her owner's appeal to local farmers to produce more food. Fourteen of the litter is still living, Mr. Downs said, and she is caring for all of them.

Early in January of this year,
the same sow, Mr. Downs says, farrowed 12 little porkers, offering a partial relief to the meat shortage in this area. Ten of that litter is still alive and weigh a healthy 225 to 240 pounds each. None of the 14 pigs in the last brood are runts, he said, and added that as soon as they are large enough they will be turned out on the feeder and range on his farm located about 3 miles from Derby.

CAPTAIN JONES IS CLEARED OF ABUSE CHARGES

LINCOLN ARMY AIR FIELD,
Neb., July 26—Capt. Stanley Jones, 47, Utica, N. Y., today was absolved of charges that he failed to prevent or investigate the mistreatment of military prisoners at the Lincoln Army air field guardhouse.

A seven man court martial
voted unanimously for acquittal.
The calm Jones maintained
throughout the four and one-half days of testimony cracked last night for the first time. His eyes filled with tears when he heard the verdict.

Prosecution attorneys had charged that in the period from November, 1943, to August, 1944, when Jones was police and prison officer at LAAG, "clubhappy" guards were permitted to abuse prisoners.

WASHINGTON, July 26—Japan acknowledged her critical military plight today with a frank hint that she might sue for peace if Ameri-war against the Japanese. And it coincided with a report that Soviet

NO NEEDED RAIN IN SIGHT; HEAT WAVE CONTINUES

There was no prospect of the rain wanted by city and county dwellers Thursday afternoon, though the weatherman did predict "fair and a little cooler tonight; Friday some cloudiness and rather warm with scattered thunder showers likely by afternoon or evening."

Local farmers are beginning to need badly the rain. Crops are suffering in some areas of the county.

It was reported that a slight rain fall occurred in some parts of the county Wednesday night. Even with Wednesday's overcast skies,
the thermometer reached an official 90, and registered a low of 69 Wednesday night. Humid weather will probably continue through Friday.

BRITISH VOTE LABOR PARTY TO POWER IN HOUSE

Conservative Party Headed
By War Leader Given
Overwhelming Defeat

EDEN IS REELECTED

Many Cabinet Members Voted
Out Of Commons As Returns Come In

LONDON, July 26—Prime Minister Winston Churchill and his conservative party went down to landslide defeat today at the hands of the British electorate which voted into parliament a sweeping labor party majority.

Churchill must now request
King George VI to call in Maj.
Clement Attlee, leader of the labor party, to form a new government.

Attlee who will succeed Churchill as prime minister issued a brief statement declaring that the results "will enable us to implement the policy of the Socialist party.
This is the first time in history of this country that labor has had a clear majority. It is a remarkable and gratifying result."

There was no immediate statement from the leader who had guided Britain through the dark hours of war in Europe to the defeat of Nazi Germany. He was closeted in the gloomy little house at No. 10 Downing street which is the residence of British prime ministers. Outside in the gathering murk of a drizzling London late afternoon a little knot of spectators silently waited.

The Labor party victory was an epic sweep which surpassed even its fondest expectations.

At 4 p. m. (11 a. m. EDT) the count showed 393 opposition seats, including 369 labor seats, and 203 government seats, including 188 Conservatives. There were 44 seats still to be reported.

The popular vote at 3 p. m. was tabulated as:
Government, 7,149,034.
Opposition, 10,807,952.

Never before had Britain placed the Labor party in power with the clear and absolute majority in the house of commons. The victory meant that Labor will rule Britain for five years unless internal schisms break its power. The first labor government was a coalition in the '20s.

It also meant that of the original Big Three which led Britain, America and Russia to victory in Europe only one now remains—Premier Josef Stalin.

Churchill, however, was expected to return to Potsdam for the

SENATOR HART VERY CRITICAL OF THE BRITISH

WASHINGTON, July 26—A former commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet is highly critical of Britain's participation in the Japanese war—and of this country's inability to strike a good bargain with the British.

Retired Admiral Thomas C.
Hart, now Republican senator from Connecticut, told the Senate during debate on the United Nations Charter yesterday that "we of the United States had best realize that our own forces must continue to bear the brunt of the war in the Pacific."

Furthermore, he added, after listing instances in which the British have come out ahead in their dealings with the United States,
"the summation of the history of our international relations over the last 28 years strongly indicates that the United States government has not been adept in its use of bargaining power."

"While possessing relatively heavy power of that sort," he said,
"we usually have failed to look to our future well-being in any field whatsoever."

BRITISH VOTE LABOR PARTY TO POWER IN HOUSE

Conservative Party Headed By War Leader Given Overwhelming Defeat

last of the conferences with Stalin and President Truman. Attlee had sat in on those discussions in preparation for just the eventuality which occurred—Churchill's repudiation by the electorate.

The voters swept from office virtually all the conservative party leaders and wheelwrecks with the exception of Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

They also vested power in a party whose policy and platform is radically different from that of the conservative and coalition governments which have run Britain for the last 10 years.

The labor party is committed to the nationalization of mines, railroads and power. Its program calls for the replacement of the bank of England with a government central bank and it has sponsored land and housing reforms which might include the nationalization of urban land.

The labor viewpoint on foreign affairs clashes with that of Churchill and the conservatives at a dozen points, notably regarding Greece and Spain in Europe. It also can be expected to be more conciliatory toward India's demands for independence.

British political observers interpreted the election not so much a repudiation of Churchill's wartime leadership as a repudiation of the Conservative party which was blamed for creating or allowing the creation of the conditions which led to the war.

The mood of the electorate was clearly shown when the unknown farmer, Alexander Hancock, who ran against Churchill in a London suburban district managed to roll up a total of more than 10,000 votes, only 17,000 fewer than were cast for Churchill.

Among the prominent conservatives to come through the election with his support little damaged was Eden who polled 60 percent of his electorate.

Churchill's associates and colleagues toppled around him like tenpins while the labor leaders rode through with impressive majorities.

Among those who went out of parliament in the sweep was Brendan Bracken, Churchill's closest government associate, and information minister until recent weeks when he became first lord of the admiralty.

Others who fell were: M. H. MacMillan, secretary of state for air; Brig. Gen. Sir Edward Spears, British minister in the Levant states; Leslie Hore-Belisha, one-time war minister; Leopold S. Amery, secretary of state for India; Sir James Grigg, war minister; Geoffrey Lloyd, minister of information; Maj. Randolph Churchill, the prime minister's son; Duncan Sandys, reconstruction minister and son-in-law of the prime minister; Richard K. Law, minister of education; Sir William Beveridge, author of the famous Beveridge plan; Ralph Aschton, chairman of the Conservative party; William Astor, son of Lady Astor; Sir Richard Acland, leader of the leftist Commonwealth party; and Ernest Brown, Liberal national and minister of aircraft production.

That the Churchill bid to stay at Britain's helm during the critical days of the end of the Pacific war and the beginning of reconstruction was in danger had been foreshadowed before the end of the brief election campaign.

But that the Labor party would make a sweep had not even been expected by the most optimistic Laborites.

All political observers had agreed that it was the most difficult election to forecast in a generation since nearly a third of the voters were going to the polls for the first time.

Army sentiment, it was known, had swung sharply to the left and its extent had been revealed in Berlin where the troops cheered Attlee rather than Churchill during an inspection of Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's "Desert Rats."

As the electoral torrent poured in, sweeping his friends and associates out of office, Churchill, grim and doubtful as he ever had been in the critical days of the blitz remained closeted in 10 Downing street.

Outside the dingy little house which is the office and residence of British prime ministers a little crowd stood, huddling close to the building to keep out of the drizzling London rain.

Two bobbies were on duty. They told the crowd genially that they had not seen Churchill all day and that there was no chance that he would make a personal appearance. But the crowd did not budge.

It was the first time the Labor party had ever won a clear majority of the house of commons although it formed a coalition under Ramsay MacDonald in the '20s.

The electoral results stunned the city—London's equivalent of Wall street. Trading on the stock exchange was at a standstill. Brokers ers had anticipated a narrow Churchill victory but were not prepared for a sweep by the Labor party whose program is frankly socialistic and which demands the nationalization of some of Britain's key industries.

The Labor sweep carried not only its strongholds in the Welsh mining country and the industrial cities of the midlands but also the great residential suburbs of London and the rural areas which have been conservative for generations. The conservative victories, generally, occurred in districts where the opposition was split.

smooth sailing as evidence that the United States is willing to participate in a full force postwar peace.

There is a possibility that upon the expected ratification of the charter late this week Mr. Truman would send a congratulatory message either to the senate or its leaders.

There was still no official confirmation that Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten has visited Potsdam. However, well-informed observers regarded the London announcement of his presence as making it clear that important Pacific war questions are being discussed by the big three.

It was highly unlikely that Mountbatten would have left his southeast Asia command except on business of the greatest importance.

Mountbatten only recently conferred with Gen. Douglas MacArthur and observers felt that the British sailor's Potsdam visit logically may be interpreted as carrying these discussions to the highest levels for final approval of forthcoming allied actions against Japan.

Mr. Truman last night dined with Ambassador Jefferson Caffery, envoy to Paris, Robert D. Murphy, who heads the political department of American military government in Germany, and Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of the U. S. army service forces.

LINDBERGH SAYS 'THIRD WORLD WAR IN MAKING'

CHICAGO, July 26—The Chicago Tribune reported today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh believes a third world war already is in the making in Europe.

Col. Lindbergh, recently returned from a research mission in Europe, passed through Chicago on a business trip, the Tribune said.

"The fear of continued warfare and revolution is widespread in Europe," Lindbergh was quoted as saying.

"Seldom in history has a nation been defeated as completely as Germany. Most of her cities are in ruins; millions of her people are dead.

"Yet the disturbing fact remains that, while our armies have been victorious in arms, we have not so far accomplished the objectives for which we went to war. We have not established peace or liberty in Europe."

Col. Lindbergh, lunching "with friends in the Tribune tower," reportedly said there is less security in Europe now than before the Allied victory, and less democracy.

RUSSIANS ASK $700,000,000 AID OF UNRRA

WASHINGTON, July 26—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration took under consideration today a Russian request for $700,000,000 worth of UNRRA aid.

The Russian request, second only to China's bid for $945,000,000 in relief, was revealed last night by UNRRA Acting Director General Roy Hendrickson.

An UNRRA supply committee will study the Russian request in light of regulations that permit aid only to nations unable to pay for their own relief.

Hendrickson also revealed that $1,279,000,000 of the $1,862,000,000 in contributions authorized or in process of authorization for UNRRA have been paid. The U. S. has authorized $1,350,000,000 and paid $809,000,000 of that amount.

Hendrickson said UNRRA shipments to liberated countries to date total 1,304,000 long tons with Greece getting the lion's share—843,000 tons.

cent reduction of creamery butter, Bowles said, will ease the present "strain on red point budgets."

The most recent cut in military buying of meat came yesterday when the armed forces reduced their demand on better grades of beef from 25 to 20 per cent for August and on the lower grades from 65 to 55 per cent.

The reduction in percentages, however, does not mean fewer pounds of beef for the services because total production is expected to be higher. It does mean that civilians will get the extra poundage produced.

Food officials said the armed forces would have had a surplus if they had continued to claim the same percentage. Civilians, who have been getting less than the 125 pounds of meat theoretically coming to them each year, now should be able to buy more nearly their full share.

The civilian meat picture also has improved somewhat as result of the government's recent action in halting the set-aside on lamb and reducing the share of pork and veal earmarked for government agencies. These cuts were made possible in part by suspension of lend-lease shipments of meat.

However, Army purchases are expected to rise again in September as more troops are moved to the Pacific and also because it is government policy to buy less during seasonally low production periods of the Summer.

Imperial Navy Out Of War After Stunning 48-Hour Aerial Bombardment

8 a. m. Wednesday, Japanese time.

Honshu Under Attack

Radio Tokyo, in a late broadcast picked up by BBC monitors, indicated that the assault against the home islands is continuing with a broadcast saying that hundreds of Allied planes were attacking eastern Honshu again today.

At least 20 Japanese warships, last survivors of the great imperial fleet, were known to have been damaged on Tuesday when Admiral William F. Halsey's Third fleet opened the attack on Kure and adjacent waters.

Men Of War Smashed

An American naval spokesman said it was improbable that any of Japanese men of war would ever put to sea again.

The Japanese have grimly warned their people that not a single city or town in the home-land could hope to be spared from complete destruction.

U. S. 20th airforce headquarters supported this enemy admission with a report that the B-29's have already burned out at least 143 square miles of 39 Japanese industrial cities.

In 16 days of intermittent sea and air attacks, Halsey's raiders—at a cost of 56 allied planes and 63 air crewmen, excluding yesterday's casualties—have destroyed or damaged 765 enemy aircraft and 521 ships.

PETAIN DENIES DIEPPE LETTER

swer questions about the reported message. When today's session opened, Defense Counsel Fernand Isorni asked the court to read Petain's testimony in the preliminary hearings on that subject.

After reading the testimony, Mongibevie asked Isorni why Petain refused to give a straight answer yesterday. Isorni replied that it was Petain's policy to say nothing.

"I am sure I did not give orders to send this telegram," Petain said in the preliminary hearings, as quoted by the judge. "The instructions contained in it were not in accordance with my sentiments."

Jules Jeanneney, president of the French senate at the time of the armistice with Germany, was the day's first witness. He followed former president Albert Lebrun and former premiers Paul Reynaud and Edouard Daladier, who in the first three days of the trial had damned Petain as a chief contributor to the fall of France.

Jeanneney, 72-year-old former senate president, now is a minister of state in Gen. Charles de Gaulle's cabinet.

The white-bearded Jeanneney opened his testimony with a recapitulation of the events in Paris, Bordeaux and Tours in the days when France was crashing to defeat.

He said he and Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies, had "full knowledge of what was happening to us."

"Reynaud kept us informed of the Germans' rapid advance," he said. "He gave us his firm decision never to cease fighting."

Jeanneney described the indecision in the cabinet. Some members argued in favor of going to England, and others wanted to go to Africa where use could be made of the French fleet.

"On June 16," he said, "we saw Reynaud, and he told us a suggestion had been made that we ask the enemy for armistice conditions. Reynaud added that if an armistice is requested, it will not be by me."

The next day, Jeanneney continued, the section of the cabinet favoring an armistice gained ascendance. It held that the struggle must stop.

"While these events were going on, Petain declared that 'whatever happens, I will not leave France,'" he said.

Camille Chautemps was put in charge of the government move to Bordeaux as the Nazi tide swept across France, Jeanneney testified, but when the time came to start he could not be found.

"I cannot say exactly what happened," Jeanneney continued. "I went to Bordeaux and 48 hours later the armistice was signed."

He said Lebrun left Bordeaux June 29, a week after the Compiegne armistice was signed. He himself followed, but was delayed for three days on the way.

conditional surrender, Tokyo said, "official publicists declare that Japan should be stripped of this or that."

"In short," it said, "they intend to mete out such a hard retribution that the Japanese people are more determined than ever to unite and resist as a united mass of 100,000,000 should, and will so continue as long as American minds remain dictatorial and oppressive."

Official quarters here have warned repeatedly that such Japanese peace bids are attempts to make the American people waver in the demand for unconditional surrender and to negotiate a peace without destroying the roots of Japanese militarism.

The demand for immediate Russian entry into the Pacific was made in the senate by Sen. Alexander Wiley, R., Wis.

He told his colleagues that the administration was being "ridiculous" with its policy of soft-pedaling speculation over Russia's plans. Declaring that "countless American lives are at stake in Russia's decision," he said:

"Why should we follow the nice Nannies of our state department who have been more concerned with diplomatic niceties than with the preservation of American interests and lives?"

Russia's plans regarding the Japanese war are believed to be among the topics being discussed by the current big three conference. The report that Stalin had carried a Japanese peace offer to Potsdam was published by Newsweek magazine.

The Japanese, according to Newsweek, sought two assurances: that Russia remain at peace with Japan and that the Japanese home islands escape invasion and occupation by the Americans.

In return, the Japanese were said to have offered to withdraw from Manchuria in favor of Moscow, to submit to United States occupation of Korea and Formosa and to "recognize the principle of independence" of Indo-China, Burma and the Philippines.

Newsweek also said that Stalin had with him at Potsdam Chinese concessions to Russian claims in Manchuria, provided the Soviets do enter the war.

Few here would expect the United States to accept the offer as outlined by Newsweek. If the Japanese home islands are not invaded and occupied, it could and likely would mean continued control for the militarists and industrialists who have engineered Japan's current experiment in aggression.

If the Japanese offer is rejected by the United States, Newsweek said, the Russians have a choice between two alternatives:

"1. To enter the war, risk casualties, but assure the flow of American lend-lease and badly needed reconstruction credits.

"2. To stay out of the war, risk jeopardizing American and British good will and economic aid from the United States, but save the lives of Russian soldiers."

Arrangements have been made for approximately 110 Jamaicans to work in Wyoming this season to make up for a deficit in agricultural labor requirements.

BRITISH VOTE LABOR PARTY TO POWER IN HOUSE

Conservative Party Headed By War Leader Given Overwhelming Defeat

The voters swept from office virtually all the conservative party leaders and wheelhorses with the exception of Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

They also vested power in a party whose policy and platform is radically different from that of the conservative and coalition governments which have run Britain for the last 10 years.

The labor party is committed to the nationalization of mines, railroads and power. Its program calls for the replacement of the bank of England with a government central bank and it has sponsored land and housing reforms which might include the nationalization of urban land.

The labor viewpoint on foreign affairs clashes with that of Churchill and the conservatives at a dozen points, notably regarding Greece and Spain in Europe. It also can be expected to be more conciliatory toward India's demands for independence.

British political observers interpreted the election not so much a repudiation of Churchill's wartime leadership as a repudiation of the Conservative party which was blamed for creating or allowing the creation of the conditions which led to the war.

The mood of the electorate was clearly shown when the unknown farmer, Alexander Hancock, who ran against Churchill in a London suburban district managed to roll up a total of more than 10,000 votes, only 17,000 fewer than were cast for Churchill.

Along among the prominent conservatives to come through the election with his support little damaged was Eden who polled 60 percent of his electorate.

Churchill's associates and colleagues toppled around him like tenpins while the labor leaders rode through with impressive majorities.

Among those who went out of parliament in the sweep was Brendan Bracken, Churchill's closest government associate, and information minister until recent weeks when he became first lord of the admiralty.

Others who fell were: M. H. Macmillan, secretary of state for air; Brig. Gen. Sir Edward Spears, British minister in the Levant states; Leslie Hore-Belisha, one-time war minister; Leopold S. Amery, secretary of state for India; Sir James Grigg, war minister; Geoffrey Lloyd, minister of information; Maj. Randolph Churchill, the prime minister's son; Duncan Sandys, reconstruction minister and son-in-law of the prime minister; Richard K. Law, minister of education; Sir William Beveridge, author of the famous Beveridge plan; Ralph Ascheton, chairman of the Conservative party; William Astor, son of Lady Astor; Sir Richard Acland, leader of the leftist Commonwealth party; and Ernest Brown, Liberal national and minister of aircraft production.

That the Churchill bid to stay at Britain's helm during the critical days of the end of the Pacific war and the beginning of reconstruction was in danger had been foreshadowed before the end of the brief election campaign.

But that the Labor party would make a sweep had not even been expected by the most optimistic Laborites.

All political observers had agreed that it was the most difficult election to forecast in a generation since nearly a third of the voters were going to the polls for the first time.

Army sentiment, it was known, had swung sharply to the left and its extent had been revealed in Berlin where the troops cheered Attlee rather than Churchill during an inspection of Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's "Desert Rats."

As the electoral torrent poured in, sweeping his friends and associates out of office, Churchill, grim and doubtful as he ever had been in the critical days of the blitz remained closeted in 10 Downing street.

Outside the dingy little house which is the office and residence of British prime ministers a little crowd stood, huddling close to the building to keep out of the drizzling London rain.

Two bobbies were on duty. They told the crowd gently that they had not seen Churchill all day and that there was no chance that he would make a personal appearance. But the crowd did not budge.

It was the first time the Labor party had ever won a clear majority of the house of commons although it formed a coalition under Ramsay MacDonald in the '20s.

Points Reduced On Beef, Veal and Lamb For Ration Period Beginning Sunday

ers had anticipated a narrow Churchill victory but were not prepared for a sweep by the Labor party whose program is frankly socialistic and which demands the nationalization of some of Britain's key industries.

The Labor sweep carried not only its strongholds in the Welsh mining country and the industrial cities of the midlands but also the great residential suburbs of London and the rural areas which have been conservative for generations. The conservative victories, generally, occurred in districts where the opposition was split.

TRUMAN VISITS YANKEE TROOPS DURING RECESS

President Says 'War Fought So We Can Live, Think, And Act As We Like'

(Continued from Page One) smooth sailing as evidence that the United States is willing to participate in a full force postwar peace.

There is a possibility that upon the expected ratification of the charter late this week Mr. Truman would send a congratulatory message either to the senate or its leaders.

There was still no official confirmation that Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten has visited Potsdam. However, well-informed observers regarded the London announcement of his presence as making it clear that important Pacific war questions are being discussed by the big three.

It was highly unlikely that Mountbatten would have left his southeast Asia command except on business of the greatest importance.

Mountbatten only recently conferred with Gen. Douglas MacArthur and observers felt that the British sailor's Potsdam visit logically may be interpreted as carrying these discussions to the highest levels for final approval of forthcoming allied actions against Japan.

Mr. Truman last night dined with Ambassador Jefferson Caffery, envoy to Paris, Robert D. Murphy, who heads the political department of American military government in Germany, and Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of the U. S. army service forces.

LINDBERGH SAYS 'THIRD WORLD WAR IN MAKING'

CHICAGO, July 26.—The Chicago Tribune reported today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh believes a third world war already is in the making in Europe.

Col. Lindbergh, recently returned from a research mission in Europe, passed through Chicago on a business trip, the Tribune said.

"The fear of continued warfare and revolution is widespread in Europe," Lindbergh was quoted as saying.

"Seldom in history has a nation been defeated as completely as Germany. Most of her cities are in ruins; millions of her people are dead.

"Yet the disturbing fact remains that, while our armies have been victorious in arms, we have not so far accomplished the objectives for which we went to war. We have not established peace or liberty in Europe."

Col. Lindbergh, lunching "with friends in the Tribune tower," reportedly said there is less security in Europe now than before the Allied victory, and less democracy.

RUSSIANS ASK $700,000,000 AID OF UNRRA

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration took under consideration today a Russian request for $700,000,000 worth of UNRRA aid.

The Russian request, second only to China's bid for $945,000,000 in relief, was revealed last night by UNRRA Acting Director General Roy Hendrickson.

An UNRRA supply committee will study the Russian request in light of regulations that permit aid only to nations unable to pay for their own relief.

Hendrickson also revealed that $1,279,000,000 of the $1,862,000,000 in contributions authorized or in process of authorization for UNRRA have been paid. The U. S. has authorized $1,350,000,000 and paid $800,000,000 of that amount.

The most recent cut in military buying of meat came yesterday when the armed forces reduced their demand on better grades of beef from 25 to 20 per cent for August and on the lower grades from 65 to 55 per cent.

The reduction in percentages, however, does not mean fewer pounds of beef for the services because total production is expected to be higher. It does mean that civilians will get the extra poundage produced.

Food officials said the armed forces would have had a surplus if they had continued to claim the same percentage. Civilians, who have been getting less than the 125 pounds of meat theoretically coming to them each year, now should be able to buy more nearly their full share.

The civilian meat picture also has improved somewhat as result of the government's recent action in halting the set-aside on lamb and reducing the share of pork and veal earmarked for government agencies. These cuts were made possible in part by suspension of lend-lease shipments of meat.

However, Army purchases are expected to rise again in September as more troops are moved to the Pacific and also because it is government policy to buy less during seasonally low production periods of the Summer.

VOTERS REJECT PROMINENT MEN

Sir Percy Harris, Liberal party whip in parliament, was defeated in Bethnal Green by Laborite P. Holman.

Conservative Brig. Gen. Sir Edward Spears, former British minister to the Levant states and husband of the Chicago-born novelist, Mary Borden, was defeated by a Laborite in Carlisle.

RAF Group Captain Max Aitken, conservative and son of Lord Beaverbrook, was elected over the Laborite candidate in the London district of Holborn.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, Liberal party candidate and former member of the Churchill "caretaker government," lost to a Labor candidate at Devonport.

Leopold S. Amery, conservative secretary of state for India, was defeated by a Laborite in Birmingham's Sparkbrook division.

Sir James Grigg, war minister, lost to a Laborite in Cardiff. Geoffrey, minister of information, lost his bid for reelection in Laywood division, Birmingham.

Sir Stafford Cripps was re-elected in the Bristol east district. Herbert Morrison, Labor party leader, won an easy victory.

Sir Richard Acland, leader of the leftist Commonwealth party, was defeated.

Richard K. Law, education minister, lost to Laborite S. H. Smith.

Sir William Beveridge, Liberal party father of social insurance, was defeated by Conservative Lt. Col. Robert L. Thorp in Berwick-on-Tweed. Beveridge was elected to parliament for the first time last October in a by-election.

Maj. Randolph Churchill, son of the prime minister, was defeated. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was re-elected.

with Japan and that the Japanese home islands escape invasion and occupation by the Americans.

In return, the Japanese were said to have offered to withdraw from Manchuria in favor of Moscow, to submit to United States occupation of Korea and Formosa and to "recognize the principle of independence" of Indo-China, Burma and the Philippines.

Newsweek also said that Stalin had with him at Potsdam Chinese concessions to Russian claims in Manchuria, provided the Soviets do enter the war.

Few here would expect the United States to accept the offer as outlined by Newsweek. If the Japanese home islands are not invaded and occupied, it could and likely would mean continued control for the militarists and industrialists who have engineered Japan's current experiment in aggression.

If the Japanese offer is rejected by the United States, Newsweek said, the Russians have a choice between two alternatives:

"1. To enter the war, risk casualties, but assure the flow of American lend-lease and badly needed reconstruction credits.

"2. To stay out of the war, risk jeopardizing American and British good will and economic aid from the United States, but save the lives of Russian soldiers."

Arrangements have been made for approximately 110 Jamaicans to work in Wyoming this season to make up for a deficit in agricultural labor requirements.

Kermit Clum of the U. S. Coast Guard, a veteran of 21 months overseas, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Clum, Coast-guardman Clum's latest assignment was at Okinawa. His brother, Sgt. Maurice Clum is now in France.

Mrs. Hattie Rife and Mrs. J. M. Kalsenman returned home Sunday after a week spent at Magnetic Springs.

The Ashville K. of P. softball team continued its winning ways at Groveport Tuesday evening when the Canal Winchester K. P. team was defeated 10 to 3. Ashville connected for thirteen safe blows off Haines, the Canal Winchester pitcher, while Hudson allowed four hits in six innings and Irwin one in the seventh. Going into the first of the seventh the score was 4 to 2, but a six run inning put the game on ice for the locals.

Leroy and Hewitt Cromley have been watering their late potatoes the past few days, making use of their newly-purchased motor and pump. Their outfit is complete with some half mile of six and four inch pipe and at full capacity with 20 sprinklers can provide the equivalent of an inch of rain per acre in an hour, which is something over 112 tons of water. The pump is operated with a pressure of 75 to 80 pounds and forces water from the sprinklers a half mile distant for a distance of 50 to 60 feet. There is sufficient water in Big Walnut that the pumping makes no appreciable difference in the stream. The Cromleys have been digging their early potatoes the past two weeks, and have several acres of Russets, Sequoias, and Katahdins for the late crop.

Miss Anne Shauk left Tuesday to visit with Mary L. Boylan at Washington C. H., where she plans to attend the Fayette county fair this week.

Mrs. Lois Pitt and son, Joe, of Columbus visited with her sister, Mrs. L. W. Fullen the early part of this week. Larry Fullen will spend the next few days with Mrs. Pitt while Mrs. Fullen visits her sister, Mrs. C. J. Downs at Huntington, W. Va.

SOAP POWDER HAZARD WORRIES POSTAL WORKERS

COLUMBUS, O., July 26—Columbus postal workers today complained of a new occupational hazard.

They said powder from thousands of packages of soap flakes which rural residents are sending to their city cousins were sifting into their mail bags causing them to suffer sneezing fits.

Mailmen said the soap and soap flakes were being sent parcel post from small towns in Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania where soap apparently was more plentiful.

The 1945 California Valencia crop is estimated at 37,800,000 boxes, a record crop and 22 percent greater than in 1944.

FARMER COOPS HAVE GOOD YEAR

Net Gain Of $2,084,839 For 138 Groups Made In 12-month Period

Ohio's farmer cooperatives reported a good 12 months, terminating with the 1944 fiscal year-end, it was reported today by officials of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, Columbus. Citing figures by Ohio State university, the Farm Bureau officials said the average net savings were $15.107 for the 138 Ohio Co-ops which made their operating records available.

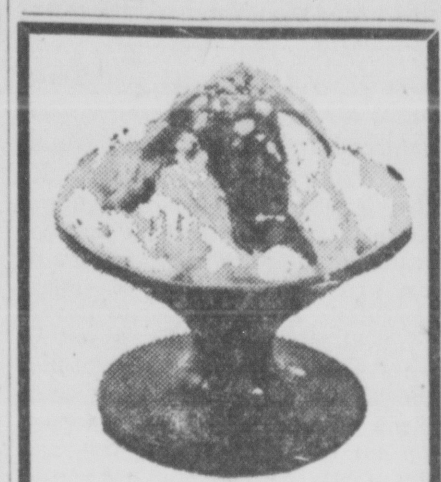

These 138 organizations, it was reported, made a net gain for the 1943-44 fiscal year of $2,084,839. This was on a total business volume for the year of $55,973,749. The Cooperatives under consideration are primarily concerned with handling grain and livestock, and with selling farm supplies. In handling the 1943-44 business volume, the Co-ops averaged 6.32 cents operating cost for each dollar. At the same time, labor costs were reported as increasing 8 percent over the previous year.

The group of Co-ops increased their average business volume 22 percent over 1942-43, and had a 20 percent average increase in gross income, it was stated. According to Farm Bureau officials, this record is outstanding in view of the increased war regulations, increased expenses, labor shortages, and impossibility of obtaining enough supplies.

The university report explained that a "composite" $100 share of stock in this type of Cooperative had a book value of $138 in 1929. This value had increased to $194 per $100 share by the end of the 1943-44 fiscal year.

During the 1943-44 year, the report said, net savings increased 26 percent over the previous period, while average total expense rose about 17 percent. Out of the 138 companies surveyed for the 1943-44 period, only two showed a deficit. By contrast, 24 showed deficits in 1934-35.

Pickaway County FSA Families Help Preserve 3,000,000 Quarts Food

Pickaway county families helped preserve more than three million quarts of vegetables, fruits and meats that were canned by Farm Security Administration co-operators in Ohio during 1944.

A. L. Sorenson, state FSA director, has informed the Circleville office that families in this area and over the state set records for preserving food during the present shortages.

"We set as a goal for each FSA borrower the canning of at least 80 quarts of food for each member of the family, but ranging upward to 120 quarts during this war," he said. "We believe that this amount is necessary to provide an adequate diet for the family through the non-growing season; and we know that the families who reach this goal eat much more economically than if they had depended upon store purchased foods while also making a definite contribution to the war food situation."

Mr. Sorenson said that as a state average, FSA home canners in 1944 had been able to surpass the 80 quart goal with an average of 91 quarts per person. This average was based upon the fact that a total of 7510 families had participated in the FSA program during 1944 that these families averaged 4.6 persons apiece, and that the entire group of FSA borrowers during 1944 canned 3,143,686 quarts of vegetables, fruits and meat.

Several other significant points were revealed in the study, Mr. Sorenson said. He pointed out that 43 per cent of the families actually canned more than 100 quarts per member of their family, while only 19 per cent canned less than the 50 quarts per person which FSA's home management division considers a danger line. He also stated that spoilage was negligible—less than eight tenths of one per cent of the total canned—and said that he believed this was partly because 50 per cent of the FSA borrowers now own and use some variety of pressure cooker which makes it

NEW FRIGIDAIRE COMES OFF LINE

First To Be Made Since 1942 Makes Appearance; None For Civilians Yet

DAYTON, O., July 26—The first of 50,000 gleaming new refrigerators—The first produced since 1942—rolled off the line at the Frigidaire division of General Motors here today without a single housewife present to utter a coveted sigh.

The only member of her sex present was 11-year-old Shirley Kreuger, daughter of Plant Manager John Kreuger who largely was responsible for the partial re-conversion of Frigidaire back to peacetime production two months ahead of schedule.

Shirley permitted herself a dignified "o-o-oh" however as the door of the seven cubic foot all-porcelain box swung open to permit her to place a huge bouquet of flowers inside; publicity men said chattering the box with a bottle might have been disastrous.

The only other witnesses to the ceremony were plant officials, newsmen and a crew of men working on a B-29 propeller assembly line less than a dozen feet away.

The refrigerator itself was a housewife's dream and General Manager Edward R. Godfrey said that was about as close as she would get to one for some time: Frigidaire's entire production this year will be doled out by the War Production Board.

Godfrey said they probably would be distributed to military and civilian hospitals first and then to other essential places. He was unable to say how soon new refrigerators would be available to civilians.

Most of frigidaire's production facilities still will be devoted to propeller production, Godfrey said. He added that the company's present manufacturing facilities represented only a fraction of those contemplated after the war.

"The present single production line," he said, "eventually will give way to four fully equipped lines capable of turning out thousands of refrigerators every day."

In addition, the company's present limited production of electric ranges and commercial freezing equipment will be expanded into a full line of refrigerators, ranges, water heaters, home freezers and commercial refrigeration equipment, he said.

The first Frigidaire to come off the assembly line had a food storage capacity of seven cubic feet and was equipped with drawer type meat tenders, sliding cold storage trays and sliding glass top dehydrators.

It also featured aluminum quickcube ice trays, built-in instant cube releases and automatic tray releases.

TRANSPORTATION NO PROBLEM FOR OHIO TRAVELER

CINCINNATI, O., July 26 — It would be difficult to convince Herman Rosen, 36-year-old inmate of Longview State hospital, that there's a transportation shortage.

Rosen disappeared from the institution Tuesday. Yesterday, Cincinnati police were informed, he showed up in Atlanta, Ga., aboard a Delta Airlines plane.

Delta and Cincinnati officials had one thing in common: they had no idea how Rosen got aboard the plane. He was arrested in Atlanta by the FBI when he was unable to produce his draft card.

Pickaway County FSA Families Help Preserve 3,000,000 Quarts Food

Pickaway county families helped preserve more than three million quarts of vegetables, fruits and meats that were canned by Farm Security Administration co-operators in Ohio during 1944.

A. L. Sorenson, state FSA director, has informed the Circleville office that families in this area and over the state set records for preserving food during the present shortages.

"We set as a goal for each FSA borrower the canning of at least 80 quarts of food for each member of the family, but ranging upward to 120 quarts during this war," he said. "We believe that this amount is necessary to provide an adequate diet for the family through the non-growing season; and we know that the families who reach this goal eat much more economically than if they had depended upon store purchased foods while also making a definite contribution to the war food situation."

Mr. Sorenson said that as a state average, FSA home canners in 1944 had been able to surpass the 50 quart goal with an average of 91 quarts per person. This average was based upon the fact that a total of 7510 families had participated in the FSA program during 1944 that these families averaged 4.6 persons apiece, and that the entire group of FSA borrowers during 1944 canned 3,143,686 quarts of vegetables, fruits and meat.

Several other significant points were revealed in the study, Mr. Sorenson said. He pointed out that 43 per cent of the families actually canned more than 100 quarts per member of their family, while only 19 per cent canned less than the 50 quarts per person which FSA's home management division considers a danger line. He also stated that spoilage was negligible—less than eight tenths of one per cent of the total canned—and said that he believed this was partly because 50 per cent of the FSA borrowers now own and use some variety of pressure cooker which makes it possible to can a greater variety of foods and to reduce the spoilage of all varieties.

In addition to the canning which FSA families did during 1944, Mr. Sorenson said that they assured themselves of a good variety of food by storing root crops and fresh fruits, making sauer kraut, curing meats and storing a variety of nuts, dried beans, grains for cereal and syrups. An increased number of borrowers also used freezer lockers for fresh meats and some fruits and vegetables.

UNDECIDED JAPAN

JAPAN is in a bad way. Looking back, it expected Germany to deal with England and keep Great Britain satisfactorily out of Nippon's hair. The United States was unprepared and with its navy wrecked it would be an easy mark. The Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere, with Japan ruling it, seemed certain.

England, instead, held off Germany till Uncle Sam could get ready, and once he turned his mind to preparation, he did a double job. Now the full force of his might is turned against Japan. Most of British power is on the job and the rest is pouring in over the shipping lanes. Russia, the Great Bear and closest neighbor, is stronger than ever and ready to jump. What to do?

The United States is ready to invade, and the Japs have tasted its fire. Their high command is probably wondering whether it would be better to give up now, save the homeland from further, perhaps from complete destruction, get what it can from the terms and start to rebuild, or whether to stand fast until invasion proves to every citizen that the war is lost and then give up.

Face might be lost in the first case, saved in the latter. But if invasion produces riots and civil war, may not members of the war-gang lose their lives instead of merely their prestige? It's a hard decision.

KENTUCKY SECRETARIES

FRED M. Vinson is the fifth Kentuckian to be secretary of the treasury. While George M. Bibb, who served briefly under President Tyler, left little mark, the others were all eminent.

James Guthrie held the post under Franklin Pierce from 1853 to 1857, and did so well that he was considered as the Democratic nominee for presidency in 1860, and even more strongly in 1868. It took unusual ability to shine in Pierce's cabinet, which ranks as one of the two or three ablest in history. Its most famous member was the secretary of war, Jefferson Davis, later president of the Confederacy.

Benjamin H. Bristow, who served for two years under Grant, was such a lion-hearted foe of corruption that he came near being nominated for president in 1876, instead of Rutherford B. Hayes.

John G. Carlisle, former speaker of the House of Representatives was the storm center of Grover Cleveland's second administration, and was Cleveland's personal choice to succeed him in the White House.

Vinson has stiff competition to meet for his place in history.

The acme of feminine authority seems to be reached by feminine traffic cops in Russia.

Then again, how can you re-educate a Nazi who has never been educated?

Inside WASHINGTON

Reporters Loud Miller, 1945 Fiscal Year Sets
Navy's New Press Chief Record for Busy F. B. I.

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Washington reporters assigned to the Navy department have noticed a marked improvement in the Navy's handling of important news and news problems with the advent of a fighting admiral as head of the Navy Public Information office.

The new press chief is Rear Adm. H. B. Miller, who wanted to command a carrier at sea. Miller previously had been sent to the Pacific to straighten out kinks in the Navy's news set-up there. He did such a fine job that Naval Secretary James Forrestal prevailed on him to take the Washington news post.

What reporters like about Miller is his willingness to see them at any time. Miller greets correspondents with, "Come in, troops. What's the gripe?" When they have a gripe, he proceeds to iron it out.

● THE 1945 FISCAL YEAR proved to be the busiest in FBI history, with convictions reaching an all-time high of 13,813, compared to the previous high of 13,616 in the preceding year. Sharp increases were noted in several major crime categories. Bank robberies rose from 29 to the fiscal year of 1944 to 53 in the past year. Frauds against the government brought 348 convictions, as against 235 in the previous year. Convictions for theft from interstate shipments totaled 1,426—or more than twice the 688 of 1944.

● PROSPECTS NOW ARE that before the summer is over President Truman will have secured congressional approval of the basic features of his plan for international cooperation—the United Na-

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER
(Subbing for Mallon)

NEW YORK, July 26—Right after Pearl Harbor, the dances, balls, debutante and dinner parties my orchestras played for throughout the nation fell away to the zero point, almost.

The problem of what to do to keep my 100 or more bands scattered around the 48 states working was solved by my booking managers, who managed to keep about 50 of them busy at one job or another. But there was another problem—what to do to occupy my time profitably? I decided I'd try the theater, my first love. As a kid I was an ambitious amateur actor. Now I could afford to play with the theater, rather than in it. I didn't have to wait long and oddly enough it came as a result of a party at the White House.

I gave the newspapers a list of tunes I would play on this particular occasion and best represented on the list was Composer Richard Rodgers. I ran into Rodgers a few days later and he offered to reciprocate by letting me invest in the new show he and the late Larry Hart had written. I took him up. The show was "By Jupiter," and it had the longest run of all the Rodgers-Hart musicals. I had tasted blood.

My second show was a revival of "Run Lil' Chillun." I was associate producer. It was a flop that nicked me $20,000. Then came the "Merry Widow" revival put on by the new opera company and starring Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggerth. I was the largest single investor. It cost only $60,000 and earned its entire investment back in 10 weeks. It ran for more than a year on Broadway and later toured the country and made a lot more money.

Next came "Tomorrow The World," which cost $25,000 and ran for two seasons on Broadway, grossed considerably over $1,000,000 and got $300,000 from the movies. My profits reminded me of the $10,000 a night orchestra fees which I hope will return after we dispose of the Japanese.

But don't get the wrong idea. There were flops along the way—"Suds In Your Eyes," "Thank You, Svoboda," "Feathers In A Gale," "Helen Goes To Troy," and "The Firebrand Of Florence."

My first solo producing venture was the comedy called "Wallflower." This was a Broadway success and it sold to the movies for $150,000.

In the season just past I lost out with "Sophie" while receiving a steady stream of income from my investment in the still-running musical show "Bloomer Girl."

Then there was "Sadie Thompson," the musical version of "Rain," which came in last fall. I put in $12,500 with the understanding that Ethel Merman would be starred. But differences developed between her and the management and she withdrew. Fearful of its chances without her, I asked for my investment back and got it. The show lost $200,000.

Meanwhile, I had invested in a motion picture, "The Hairy Ape," which was a money-maker and produced a series of shorts for RKO-Radio.

This summer I am reading scripts, looking for something to produce next fall. So far, nothing has struck my fancy. It's also difficult to find shows that appeal to me sufficiently to attract me as a backer, although I have found one such. This one is "You Touched Me," a play by Tennessee Williams which Guthrie McClintic will produce.

tions charter and the Bretton Woods financial agreements.

Another administration "must" measure, which already has been passed by Congress, would authorize 50 per cent cuts in existing tariffs in trade agreements negotiated with other countries.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee hearings on the charter started July 9. Senate ratification by an overwhelming majority is forecast early in August.

The Bretton Woods proposals is up for Senate consideration. Early passage is predicted, but Republicans, led by Senator Robert Taft (R) of Ohio, intend to hurl a barrage of amendments at it.

● THE EMPHASIS ON RESEARCH on preparedness which is sweeping through Congress is being used by opponents of compulsory military training as an argument against that proposal.

Their argument is that research will so revolutionize the weapons of the next war, if there is one, that compulsory military training would be practically useless.

Military men answer that it is not only necessary to develop weapons, it is essential that the men be available to use them. They insist, moreover, that preparedness must take not one but numerous forms.

● THE UNITED NATIONS CLOTHING DRIVE netted some prize furs among other things. The furs are to be issued to refugees only on doctors' prescriptions in areas where sufficient heating is not available.

So far the clothing drive has received at least one mink coat, several silver foxes and other less glamorous furs. Plus assorted headcheases.

One wealthy matron gave her daughter permission to donate a black dress to a "clothing drive matinee" at a neighborhood theater. Two weeks later she realized that she had put $270 in one of the dress pockets for safe keeping.

After officials had painstakingly traced the dress to New York and rescued it, the woman told them that she had made a mistake; the $270 was in the pocket of a red dress and she had just retrieved it.

Her offer of a cash donation to the drive to compensate for the trouble she had caused was politely turned down.

VINCENT'S infection or, as it is also called, Vincent's angina is a disorder affecting the gums and mouth. There is still a great deal of dispute as to exactly what produces the disorder, and what may be the best method of treatment. Some believe it to be a disorder due to a deficiency of certain vitamins, particularly those of the B-complex, such as niacin and riboflavin.

The lack of the vitamin allows the tissues of the mouth to be attacked by germs such as staphylococci which are normally present in the mouth. Others believe the condition is due to a combined infection with two germs, one known as the spirillum of Vincent and the other, the fusiform bacillus. There is also some dispute as to whether the disease is catching and whether it might not be produced by mechanical or chemical irritation of the mouth tissues.

Various Treatments

Various forms of treatment for the disorder such as preparations that furnish oxygen, the use of arsenic-containing drugs as well as those containing chromic acid, have been employed with good result.

Recently, Doctor Carlos F. Schuessler and his co-workers of the Dental Corps of the Army have treated a number of patients suffering from Vincent's infection with penicillin. Patients were selected who had the disease in a severe form, and who had not had any previous treatment. No treatment was used other than the penicillin until the sores and inflammation in the mouth cleared up. The patients ranged in age from 18 to 37 years of age and with few exceptions were cigarette smokers.

Two Way Approach

The treatment with penicillin was carried out in two ways. The first group of patients was treated by injections of penicillin given into the buttock muscles at three-hour intervals, five to eight times a day. The second group was treated by applying the penicillin solution, or penicillin in a powder, directly to the mouth. The solution was applied three times daily, and held in the mouth two minutes following treatment. The powder was applied to the sores with an atomizer five times daily, at three-hour intervals.

Still another group was treated with sprays of a dilute solution of penicillin. In all cases, the treatment was continued until the germs present in the mouth were of the normal variety.

Check Effectiveness

In order to check the effectiveness of the penicillin, other patients were treated with hydrogen peroxide wash, and chromic acid, and niacin. In the patients treated with the solution of penicillin, failures occurred in only one out of 25 to 30 patients. On the other hand, in those treated in other ways, failures varied from one out of every ten patients to one out of every four patients.

The penicillin method of treatment is safe, easily carried out, and causes no reactions. It clears up the infection quickly. The local application of penicillin solution seems more satisfactory than does treatment by injection of the solution into a vein. Thus again, penicillin has proved itself a valuable substance in the treatment of a common and, sometimes, serious mouth infection.

SYNOPSIS

Eleonore Lawrence, Air Raid Defense Center worker in Sweetsburg—a town humming with war industry and rumors of saboteurs—has been the recipient of spy exposure books, and wonders who the anonymous sender is. She secretly hopes it might be William Steuben, a friend of her brother Arthur, who had visited the Lawrence home months ago, but from whom she had heard nothing since. One of the air raid officials showed distinguished-looking B. Stead Jones how the Center operates. The Lawrence household, located on the lonely outskirts of town, consists of "Grandma" Lawrence; Sukey, Eleonore's small sister; and Mamie, maid of all work. Eleonore's brothers, Arthur and Eben, are in the Navy and Coast Guard respectively. Eleonore learns from Fannie Edgerly, real estate agent, that the adjoining Wolfe estate has been leased by B. Stead Jones.

CHAPTER THREE

Eleonore reflected on her grandmother's agitation when letters from the boys came irregularly, weeks between. Poor Gran! She had lost four sons. Dad had been the last. Twelve years ago she had come to stay with them just after mother died. She and Mamie had practically raised Eben and Susanne—or Sukey, as they had nicknamed her.

The telephone rang as she stepped out of her shower. Eleonore heard her grandmother answering it. "This is Mrs. Lawrence. . . . Oh, Elmer Lawrence? She can't come now. Tell me what you want. . . . Who is it?"

The telephone rang around her, sped down the stairs. "Here, I'll take it."

The old lady grumbled, "A man—won't say who he is." Eleonore laughed. "Love's secrets, Mrs. Lawrence! . . . Hello."

A strange voice said, "Miss Lawrence, this is John Sabrisky. You don't know me but I would like to see you tonight on a private matter of great importance."

"Sabrisky? . . . I'm sorry but I'm afraid it won't be convenient tonight. I will see you in the morning."

"Please make it tonight," he said evenly. "I'll only be in town a few hours."

"Can't you give me an idea of what it's about and who sent you?"

"Grandma nudged her furiously. 'Don't you do it.'"

"You're very mysterious," Eleonore declared.

He cleared his throat. "Sorry to be that way, but I must be."

"It's impossible tonight. Sorry." She hung up. "Just some crank," she reported to Gran.

But the man was not a crank.

Sukey came in before they finished dinner and reported that there were lights in the Wolfe house. Grandma was annoyed that the renting of the house had not been reported to her, and sulked that, "No one ever tells me anything." She was still in that mood when they sat before the library fire afterward. Eleonore knitting, and Sukey playing with her dolls. Beautiful at three, very pretty at six, Sukey at twelve was pudgy and unfinished looking. Eleonore had hopes for her however.

Sukey said in her sweet child's voice. "Why don't you marry some one, Eleonore?"

taxi and be out in a few minutes." The Chief lowered his voice. "See him alone. That's important."

Sukey was hustled off to bed, but Grandma refused to budge, and Eleonore was in a quandary. To pleadings that the chief of detectives said it was safe to meet him, "Granny" folded her arms and replied sternly, "How do you know?"

Soon John Sabrisky arrived. He was slim, about thirty, shabbily dressed, and needed a haircut. His expression was rather hard, he looked at you directly. He told Eleonore that he had been a private

"Would you undertake a job for Counter Intelligence?" asked Sabrisky.

"Hey, what's that?" Grandma came out of her doze, fear springing to her sunken eyes. Now that George her last child was gone, Eleonore represented security to her. She remarked, "You're twenty-four, Eleonore. Doris was married then."

"Sometime you ask Mamie," remarked Eleonore. "She'll tell you."

"I did and I remember when Henry Winters got killed in an airplane accident. But that was—"

"Three years ago," Eleonore said, finishing Grandma's sentence.

The telephone rang and Eleonore rose. Sabrisky again?

But it was Chief Plant's hearty voice which came over the wire. "Are you the young lady that I talked to this afternoon?"

"Yes."

He chuckled. "Odd, when you come to think of it! There's a fellow here who has an important communication for you but he says you won't let him come out. Now I'll vouch for him. He's all right—his credentials are okay. He'll take a detective before he joined the C.I.C. "That's the Counter Intelligence Corps," he explained, "a part of the army." He sat on the edge of a needlepoint chair near the hall door, staring at the fire. "Could I see you alone, Miss Lawrence?" he asked.

With compressed lips, Mrs. Lawrence got up and left the room. Eleonore could hear her plodding up the stairs. "I think she suspected you of arson, robbery, and worse, even though I told her that Chief Plant vouched for you," she explained smiling.

He cast a look into the dining room which opened out to the library. "No one else downstairs?"

"No."

"We have been told that we can rely on you absolutely."

"I think I can be trusted."

Sabrisky hitched his chair a little closer. "Would you undertake a job for the C.I.C.?"

Her assent was ready and enthusiastic.

VIOLATING THE CEILING

WE KNOW from O. P. A. that paying more than the ceiling price is unpatriotic, black-marketish and illegal. Bidding more than the ceiling over your side's playing strength is not only unsound in contract bridge. It is costly. Your partner's previous action during the auction may have shown you that his hand is definitely under some certain measure of strength. If so, you would be unwise to count on him later for strength which you should know he couldn't possibly have.

If North had bid 2-Spades as an immediate response to South's opener, as many fine players would have done, there would have been an invitation to reach for 4-Spades if North had the strongest kind of hand on which he could have made a single raise, for the ceiling shown by an immediate raise might be just below the strength required for 3-Spades.

But, when North had passed on his first turn, South had no justification for straining to the next level of 3-Spades. He should have counted up his own trick-taking ability first, about as follows: Probably three in spades, a fraction better than two in hearts and a couple of fractions in the minors—all told, probably about six and a fraction. To make game, or 10 tricks, he would have to find North's hand worth from three to four tricks to him.

What was the likelihood of that since North was so weak he had to pass on his first turn, though South had opened the bidding? Virtually none. North's single bid of 2-Spades on his second turn indicated nothing except a preference for spades over hearts, may be only a greater dislike of hearts than spades. South should have passed that instead of making that last bid of 3-Spades.

The sad part of this story is that South lost two tricks in diamonds and one each in the other suits, a total of five. He would have made a 2-Spade contract with was down one at 3-Spades.

UNDECIDED JAPAN

JAPAN is in a bad way. Looking back, it expected Germany to deal with England and keep Great Britain satisfactorily out of Nippon's hair. The United States was unprepared and with its navy wrecked it would be an easy mark. The Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere, with Japan ruling it, seemed certain.

England, instead, held off Germany till Uncle Sam could get ready, and once he turned his mind to preparation, he did a double job. Now the full force of his might is turned against Japan. Most of British power is on the job and the rest is pouring in over the shipping lanes. Russia, the Great Bear and closest neighbor, is stronger than ever and ready to jump. What to do?

The United States is ready to invade, and the Japs have tasted its fire. Their high command is probably wondering whether it would be better to give up now, save the homeland from further, perhaps from complete destruction, get what it can from the terms and start to rebuild, or whether to stand fast until invasion proves to every citizen that the war is lost and then give up.

Face might be lost in the first case, saved in the latter. But if invasion produces riots and civil war, may not members of the war-gang lose their lives instead of merely their prestige? It's a hard decision.

KENTUCKY SECRETARIES

FRED M. Vinson is the fifth Kentuckian to be secretary of the treasury. While George M. Bibb, who served briefly under President Tyler, left little mark, the others were all eminent.

James Guthrie held the post under Franklin Pierce from 1853 to 1857, and did so well that he was considered as the Democratic nominee for presidency in 1860, and even more strongly in 1868. It took unusual ability to shine in Pierce's cabinet, which ranks as one of the two or three ablest in history. Its most famous member was the secretary of war, Jefferson Davis, later president of the Confederacy.

Benjamin H. Bristow, who served for two years under Grant, was such a lion-hearted foe of corruption that he came near being nominated for president in 1876, instead of Rutherford B. Hayes.

John G. Carlisle, former speaker of the House of Representatives was the storm center of Grover Cleveland's second administration, and was Cleveland's personal choice to succeed him in the White House.

Vinson has stiff competition to meet for his place in history.

WASHINGTON—Washington reporters assigned to the Navy department have noticed a marked improvement in the Navy's handling of important news and news problems with the advent of a fighting admiral as head of the Navy Public Information office.

The new press chief is Rear Adm. H. B. Miller, who wanted to command a carrier at sea. Miller previously had been sent to the Pacific to straighten out kinks in the Navy's news set-up there. He did such a fine job that Naval Secretary James Forrestal prevailed on him to take the Washington news post.

What reporters like about Miller is his willingness to see them at any time. Miller greets correspondents with, "Come in, troops. What's the gripe?" When they have a gripe, he proceeds to iron it out.

THE 1945 FISCAL YEAR proved to be the busiest in FBI history, with convictions reaching an all-time high of 13,613, compared to the previous high of 13,616 in the preceding year. Sharp increases were noted in several major crime categories. Bank robberies rose from 29 to the fiscal year of 1944 to 53 in the past year. Frauds against the government brought 348 convictions, as against 235 in the previous year. Convictions for theft from interstate shipments totaled 1,426—more than twice the 688 of 1944.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER
(Subbing for Mallon)

NEW YORK, July 26.—Right after Pearl Harbor, the dances, balls, debutante and dinner parties my orchestras played for throughout the nation fell away to the zero point, almost.

The problem of what to do to keep my 100 or more bands scattered around the 48 states working was solved by my booking managers, who managed to keep about 50 of them busy at one job or another. But there was another problem—what to do to occupy my time profitably? I decided I'd try the theater, my first love. As a kid I was an ambitious amateur actor. Now I could afford to play with the theater, rather than in it. I didn't have to wait long and oddly enough it came as a result of a party at the White House.

I gave the newspapers a list of tunes I would play on this particular occasion and best represented on the list was Composer Richard Rodgers. I ran into Rodgers a few days later and he offered to reciprocate by letting me invest in the new show he and the late Larry Hart had written. I took him up. The show was "By Jupiter," and it had the longest run of all the Rodgers-Hart musicals. I had tasted blood.

My second show was a revival of "Run Lil' Chillun." I was associate producer. It was a flop that nicked me $20,000. Then came the "Merry Widow" revival put on by the new opera company and starring Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggerth. I was the largest single investor. It cost only $60,000 and earned its entire investment back in 10 weeks. It ran for more than a year on Broadway and later toured the country and made a lot more money.

Next came "Tomorrow The World," which cost $25,000 and ran for two seasons on Broadway, grossed considerably over $1,000,000 and got $300,000 from the movies. My profits reminded me of the $10,000 a night orchestra fees which I hope will return after we dispose of the Japanese.

But don't get the wrong idea. There were flops along the way—"Suds In Your Eyes," "Thank You, Svoboda," "Feathers In A Gale," "Helen Goes To Troy," and "The Firebrand Of Florence."

In the season just past I lost out with "Sophie" while receiving a steady stream of income from my investment in the still-running musical show "Bloomer Girl."

Then there was "Sadie Thompson," the musical version of "Rain," which came in last fall. I put in $12,500 with the understanding that Ethel Merman would be starred. But differences developed between her and the management and she withdrew. Fearful of its chances without her, I asked for my investment back and got it. The show lost $200,000.

Meanwhile, I had invested in a motion picture, "The Hairy Ape," which was a money-maker and produced a series of shorts for RKO-Radio.

This summer I am reading scripts, looking for something to produce next fall. So far, nothing has struck my fancy. It's also difficult to find shows that appeal to me sufficiently to attract me as a backer, although I have found one such. This one is "You Touched Me," a play by Tennessee Williams which Guthrie McClintic will produce.

tions charter and the Bretton Woods financial agreements.

Another administration "must" measure, which already has been passed by Congress, would authorize 50 per cent cuts in existing tariffs in trade agreements negotiated with other countries.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee hearings on the charter started July 9. Senate ratification by an overwhelming majority is forecast early in August.

The Bretton Woods proposals is up for Senate consideration. Early passage is predicted, but Republicans, led by Senator Robert Taft (R) of Ohio, intend to hurl a barrage of amendments at it.

THE EMPHASIS ON RESEARCH on preparedness which is sweeping through Congress is being used by opponents of compulsory military training as an argument against that proposal.

Their argument is that research will revolutionize the weapons of the next war, if there is one, that compulsory military training would be practically useless.

Military men answer that it is not only necessary to develop weapons, it is essential that the men be available to use them. They insist, moreover, that preparedness must take not one but numerous forms.

THE UNITED NATIONS CLOTHING DRIVE netted some prize furs among other things. The furs are to be issued to refugees only on doctors' prescriptions in areas where sufficient heating is not available.

So far the clothing drive has received at least one mink coat, several silver foxes and other less glamorous furs. Plus assorted headpieces. One wealthy matron gave her daughter permission to donate a black dress to a "clothing drive matinee" at a neighborhood theater. Two weeks later she realized that she had put $270 in one of the dress pockets for safe keeping.

After officials had painstakingly traced the dress to New York and rescued it, the woman told them that she had made a mistake; the $270 was in the pocket of a red dress and she had just retrieved it.

Her offer of a cash donation to the drive to compensate for the trouble she had caused was politely turned down.

CANNING FAIR IS ANNOUNCED BY OHIO GAS OFFICE

Rules, classifications and judging procedures for the local home canning fair to be conducted by the Gas Company in September were announced by Dan McClain, manager of the Circleville office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company. Local homemakers wishing to enter their choice home canned fruits and vegetables are instructed to submit their entries from September 10th through September 17th. Canned foods winning awards, will be on display during the week of September 21st. Any homemaker, who is a customer of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, is eligible to enter the home canning fair. There are no entrance fees.

Miss Betty Newton, home service adviser, for the gas company and conductor of the canning event, states that there will be $55,000 in cash and one hundred and twenty prize ribbons awarded for home canned exhibits in forty food classifications. Complete details of the classification groups, the rules and regulations of the fair are available in the form of printed leaflet at the gas company.

"Successful home canning is getting to be an exact science," Miss Newton said. "To help the beginner and to supply veteran canners with the latest canning information, we have compiled a thirty-two page canning guide. This booklet, available in the gas company office, will be a valuable aid to exhibitors."

All the canned foods in the home canning fair will be judged on the basis of appearance only. This practical method of judging is used because opening the jars for tasting would involve a waste of food. No jars will be opened and all entries will be returned. The judges will take into consideration the appearance of the pack, the selection of the produce and the appearance of the container or jar.

Lockbourne Army Air Base To Hold Open House Wednesday In Observance Of Army Air Force Day

In observance of Air Force Day, Wednesday, August 1, commemorating the 38th anniversary of the founding of the Army Air Forces Lockbourne Army Air Base will conduct open house for the citizens of Columbus, Circleville and surrounding areas, Colonel Robert F. Burnham, commanding officer, announced today.

August 1 was designated Air Force Day by General of the Army H. H. Arnold, Commanding General, Army Air Forces. The day will be observed by AAF units throughout the world as the anniversary of the Signal Corps order creating the Division of Aeronautics on August 1, 1907, "to study the flying machine and the possibility of adapting it to military purposes."

Lockbourne will be host to all civilian guests who care to visit the base that day from 9 a. m. until 5 a. m. Elaborate displays and exhibitions of Air-Force equipment, as well as a gigantic military review, have been planned. Special guests of Lockbourne on Air Force Day will be Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Governor Frank J. Lausche, Mayor James A. Rhodes, Carol Landis, Lloyd Nolan, Peggy Ann Garner, Jimmy Dunn, George Jessel, Richard Conti and others. Visitors of the base will be allowed to inspect many of the Army combat planes including the B-29 Superfortress, the B-17 Flying Fortress, the B-25 Billy Mitchell, the A-26 Invader, C-45, C-47, AT-6 and AT-11.

Captain Rickenbacker and his party will review a military parade of all Lockbourne personnel the afternoon of August 1. The famous Columbus-born flier will also make a formal presentation of medals to a group of overseas veterans now stationed here.

Ceremonies honoring the airmen who have given their lives in this war will be held at 9 a. m. Wednesday simultaneously in Lockbourne's two chapels to officially open the day.

Special exhibitions to be held on the base include crash fire fighting and rescue, demonstrating the efficiency of modern fire fighting equipment in rescuing airmen from burning planes, and ditching procedures, exhibiting the use of the life raft and other emergency equipment.

Open to the public on Air Force Day will be the Personnel Equipment Museum, Link trainer and bomb trainer sections, East and West chapels, dayroom and barracks of Squadron A, Base Hospital, Consolidated mess hall, post exchange, post theatre and others. Throughout the day, squadrons of B-17's will be flying over Circleville and Lockbourne.

Arrangements have been made to sell sandwiches and hot and cold drinks to civilians who remain on the base through the lunch period. Lockbourne will hold its own premiere of "Captain Eddie," much heralded cinemaccount of the life of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker at 6:30 the night of August 1.

NATIONAL FARM LOANS WILL BE MADE QUICKER

Under new legislation recently enacted by Congress it will be possible for the National Farm Loan Association to handle loans more expeditiously, Miss Ethel Brobst, secretary-treasurer of the Pickaway county association said, and with more of the lending process turned over to the association, the prospective borrowers will be told more quickly of what action will be taken on their applications for long term Federal land bank loans.

The association may lend up to 65 percent of the normal value of the farm, under the new law, whereas since 1917 they have been limited to 50 percent of the appraised normal value of the land plus 20 percent of the permanent improvements.

Land bank commissioner loans will be continued for 1 year from July 1, 1945, and they have been made up to 75 percent of the normal agriculture value of the farm. The contract interest rate on these loans will be 5 percent except to veterans who may borrow at 4 percent in the event the loan is guaranteed under the GI Bill of Rights. The contract rate for land bank loans will remain at its present all-time low of 4 percent.

"This new loan plan will be advantageous to many borrowers for it will not only reduce their interest rate but will give them the advantage of having only one creditor," Miss Brobst stated.

TRUMAN RECEIVES HISTORIC FLAG

PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN is shown receiving the first American flag to fly over Berlin from Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commanding general of the U. S. district in that city. The flag was first raised on July 4, 1945, over the Adolf Hitler barracks. The President will bring the historic souvenir home when he returns from the Big Three conference at Potsdam. U. S.
